

Why are Team Sports Important to Me?

By: Erin Hong

Team sports are important to me because they show me how to work together, participate, and follow directions. I get to learn how to work with people I've never met before. I can learn to listen and follow directions from a coach. I can learn to work together to beat the other team and win a game. I can learn how to form a plan without yelling and disagreeing with my teammates. My leadership skills would improve and I would communicate better. I can join team sports for entertainment. I will also learn how to practice hard and show good sportsmanship.

I will learn to work together by communicating with my teammates to form a plan. This way, my team would probably win. But we also need good sportsmanship, since we don't want the other team to feel really bad. If we lose, we can congratulate them and not get really mean and angry. Then everyone would be proud and happy for trying.

If I improve my leadership skills, I can encourage sad teammates and be positive so that everyone tries harder with renewed determination. If I work hard and practice, I can improve and help my team. I'd look on the bright side, and my team would push on. We would play, encouraging each other to keep going. We could rise up as the winner, or be proud for trying.

I could join team sports for entertainment. It would be a great opportunity to have fun while exercising and getting my body moving. I could even make new friends from my team so that I'd have even more fun. We could socialize while practicing. It'd be fun and entertaining.

On top of my leadership skill improvement, I'd learn to create plans with my team to win a game. We could use some good teamwork and communication skills to win. Even better, if we were all friends, we'd have a better time playing. If that happened, and we knew each other well, we would probably make no mistakes.

Those are the reasons why team sports are important to me. I can improve my leadership skills. I could communicate better. I can make new friends. I can have fun. These are the basic reasons why team sports are important to me.
